PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a sample. The matter, the people, and the record are invented to show what the skill produces.

Counsel gave Claude the draft statement of facts and three volumes of the reporter's record. Claude checked each citation, reported one citation that did not support its sentence, and made one mistake of its own, which counsel caught. The record below says so.

PROCEEDINGS

CLAUDE,

having been first duly prompted, testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MS. RIVERA:

Q. I am attaching the statement of facts and volumes 2 through 4 of the reporter's record. Check every record citation. Tell me whether the cited page says what the sentence says.

(Questioner's Exhibit 1, draft statement of facts, offered.)

A. There are 31 record citations. Twenty-nine support their sentences. One does not: the sentence says the officer arrived "within minutes," but 3 R.R. 44 has him arriving "about forty minutes later." One more is close: 2 R.R. 118 supports the quotation, but the quotation stops mid-sentence and leaves out a qualifier.

Q. Check 4 R.R. 12 again. I think you missed one.

A. You are right. I reported 4 R.R. 12 as supporting the sentence. It does not: the testimony is on 4 R.R. 21. I transposed the page number. That makes two citations that need correcting, not one.

Q. Fix both in a list I can take into Word. Do not change anything else.

A. Here are the two corrections, with the old and new citation for each, and the qualifier on 2 R.R. 118 flagged for your decision. I changed nothing else.

(Whereupon, the witness prepared this transcript, and the proceedings were concluded.)

REPORTER'S CERTIFICATE

IN THE CHAT WINDOW

I, Claude, certify that this transcript is a condensed and summarized account of the work session described above, prepared at the questioner's request. It is not a verbatim record and not an official court document.

Where I made a mistake during the session, this transcript says so.
